D2: WO 02/074753 A (RHEINHEIMER JOACHIM; BASF AG (DE); GEWEHR MARKUS (DE); LORENZ GISELA) 26 September 2002 (2002-09-26)

Novelty

D1 discloses fungicidally active 2-substituted pyrimidines of formula I, including compounds in which the group R^4 is inter alia $C(=NOR^c)NR^aR^b$ (see page 1, lines 4, 5; page 1, formula 1; page 2, line 45; page 17, line 36 - page 19, line 4; pages 30-50, examples).

The present claim 1 claims two a priori unified embodiments, i.e. compounds in which R^4 is $-C(=Z)-NH-X-R^a$ with $Z = N$, which can be regarded as a formally novel selection from D1 because the group R^4 in D1 can, in addition to $-C(=NOR^c)NR^aR^b$, also have other meanings, and compounds in which R^4 is $-C(=Z)-NH-X-R^a$ with $Z = S$ or $-C(=N-X-R^a)-SR^b$ and for which D1 is not prejudicial to novelty.

Box No. V	Reasoned statement under Article 35(2) with regard to novelty, inventive step or industrial applicability; citations and explanations supporting such statement
-----------	---

Novelty over D1 can therefore be formally recognized for the subject matter of independent claims 1 and 7 to 9 and dependent claims 2 to 4.

D2 discloses additional fungicidally active 2-substituted pyrimidines from which the compounds of formula I in claim 1 differ in that the substituent R^4 in formula I of claim 1 is acyclic (see page 1, lines 2, 3; page 1, formula I; page 24, line 14 - page 25, line 9; pages 35-44, examples).

Inventive step

First invention:

The distinguishing feature is the novel selection of the group R^4 , this group being $-C(=Z)-NH-X-R^a$ with $Z = N$, at the 2-position on the pyrimidine.

In the absence of material that demonstrates the presence of a surprising effect brought about by this feature, the objective problem on which the novel selection is based can merely be regarded as that of providing additional compounds having a fungicidal effect within the framework of the general teaching of D1.

Since, however, the claimed solution to this very general problem is regarded as a random selection from D1 owing to the absence of a technical effect, an inventive step cannot be recognized for this solution.

Second invention:

The distinguishing feature is group R^4 , this group being $-C(=Z)-NH-X-R^a$ with $Z = S$ or $-C(=N-X-R^a)-SR^b$, at the 2-position on the pyrimidine.

It also applies here that, in the absence of material that demonstrates the presence of a surprising effect brought about by this feature, the objective problem on which the novel features are based can merely be regarded as that of providing additional compounds having a fungicidal effect, additional intermediate products and an additional method for the production thereof.

The claimed solution to this very general problem consists in the provision of pyrimidines substituted with a group R^4 at the 2-position, the group R^4 being a thiocarboxylic acid amide or its tautomers.

Since, however, this solution cannot be derived from the prior art, an inventive step must be recognized for the aforementioned novel features, even in the absence of a technical effect.

Industrial applicability

The subject matter of the present claims 1 to 9 is clearly industrially applicable.

Matters of form and content

The concrete practical examples and the production methods mentioned in the description and in the claims relate exclusively to compounds in which "Z" is "sulfur". Claim 1, to the extent that it relates to compounds in which "Z" is "nitrogen", is therefore not sufficiently supported by the description.

Supplemental Box

In case the space in any of the preceding boxes is not sufficient.

Continuation of:

IV. Lack of unity of invention

WO-A-03/043993 (D1) discloses fungicidally active 2-substituted pyrimidines of formula I, including compounds in which the group R^4 is $-C(=NOR^c)NR^aR^b$.

The distinguishing feature of the compounds of formula I in the present claim 1 in relation to the compounds of D1 can therefore be regarded as that of

- firstly, the provision of pyrimidines substituted with a group $-C(=Z)-NH-X-R^a$ at the 2-position, Z being "nitrogen", and
- secondly, the provision of pyrimidines substituted with a group $-C(=Z)-NH-X-R^a$ or $-C(=N-X-R^a)-SR^b$ at the 2-position, Z being "sulfur".

However, since there are two different distinguishing features without any common structural feature, the subject matter of the present claim 1 cannot be regarded as having unity within the meaning of EPC Article 82 and must therefore be divided into two different inventions (lack of unity of invention a posteriori) as follows:

- provision of pyrimidines substituted with a group $-C(=Z)-NH-X-R^a$ at the 2-position, intermediate products and a method for the production thereof (first invention),
- provision of pyrimidines substituted with a group $-C(=Z)-NH-X-R^a$ or $-C(=N-X-R^a)-SR^b$ at the 2-position, Z being "sulfur", intermediate products and a method for the production thereof (second invention).
